The Campbell Movement

SEVERAL THINGS (Concluded)

“Thomas Campbell, alarmed at the adventurous boldness of his son in handling so roughly things and person hitherto considered sacred by the people, expostulated often, and sought by contributing to the paper milder essays to soften or extenuate censures whose substantial justness he could not but acknowledge.” But none of these things moved him. He verily believed the clergy to be the greatest enemy to the progress of Christianity, and he was determined to do everything in his power to weaken its influence upon the people.

QUITS THE REDSTONE ASSOCIATION

The hostility of the preachers of the Redstone Association, led by his old enemies—Pritchard, Brownfield, and the Stones—became so great that they determined to thrust Mr. Campbell and his friends out of it. To make sure of their purpose they had special brethren to go among the churches and induce them to send messengers to the association that were unfriendly to him. They, therefore, had the jury “fixed” before court ever convened. Personally, Mr. Campbell cared little for his impending excommunication; but since he had engaged to meet Mr. McCalla shortly in debate, he thought it best to avoid the discredit intended by his enemies lest it should mar his success or prevent the debate altogether. He, therefore, determined to defeat the project in a way entirely unexpected by his enemies, but in perfect harmony with Baptist usage.

As many members of the Brush Run Church lived in Wellsburg and vicinity, he asked for letters of dismissal for himself and about thirty other members that they might form a new congregation. This they did. Of course this new congregation was not a member of the Redstone Association. It later became a member of the Mahoning Association. When the Redstone Association met, Mr. Campbell was there as a spectator, but not as a messenger. This was a great surprise, and a motion to invite him to a seat caused objections and a lengthy debate. Finally they asked Mr. Campbell, who had listened in silence, why he was not a messenger from the Brush Run Church as usual.

A WARM WELCOME TO OUR GUESTS. Please fill out a white visitor card found in the back of the pew in front of you, including your mailing address and email address, and drop it in the collection plate on your way out. We are so glad we can worship together today.

Recent Prayer Requests

- Dorothy Laux is now at Brookdale Memory Care in Jackson. Her new address is posted on the bulletin board.
- Bob Farmer, Janet Elkins' uncle, was able to move back to rehab.

- Greg Matlock is going to be having a total knee replacement this Wednesday, February 23.
- Becky Cate's surgery went well Wednesday. She is back home and recovering. This is Teresa Baker's daughter.
- Janice and Billy Watkins both have covid. She is at home. He is now in rehab, but still not doing well.
- Jimmy Johnson will need to have surgery for back pain that he is still suffering from, but he first has to gain 20lbs. They will go back for a follow-up in May.
- Mary Margaret Ulderich had a PET scan in Nashville this past Tuesday revealing the possibility of cancer in her lymph nodes. She will be having a biopsy done on those. The mass in her lung didn't show cancer.
- We extend our deepest sympathy to the family of Lanora Guy. She sadly passed away Friday morning. Plunk Funeral Home will be handling the arrangements, which were incomplete at the time of this printing.

regrets that the association had wasted so much time upon so trifling a matter, and said he would relieve them at once by stating that the church of which he was a member was not connected with the Redstone Association. You could have “knocked them over with a feather.” They were dumfounded.
